SOME LABOR HISTORY

The Evidence Against J. M. Kelly Before the Trades Council.

THE EDITOR WAS INDIFFERENT.

He Says He Preferred to Make No Defense of Ris Actions.

OUTGROWTH OF THE JEANNETTE CASE The expulsion of Editor John M. Kelly from the Central Trades Council on Saturday night did not excite so much comment in labor circles yesterday as might have been the charges against him clearly proven. The evidence in support of the charges was sufficiently voluminous to fill three columns of THE DISPATCH. The charges were entered against Mr. Kelly at the instance of L. A. 6111, through its delegates, and were as follows:

First—That in the official organ of L. A. 300, of which he is the editor, he persistently misrepresented the motives and action of the Central Trades Council and slandered it and its members in the most abusive manner.

Second—That both verbally and in the official organ of L. A. 300, he made deliberate misstatements which he knew to be false, for the purpose of misleading the Executive Board of the Central Trades Council, which at the request of L. A. 6111, was investigating the manner in which 45 foreign glass workers were brought to Jeannette, Pa.

Third—That when placed upon the witness stand he took a solenn oath to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, and contrary to the letter and spirit of this solenn obligation, he swore to statements which were subsequently proven untrue, and suppressed facts which he knew to be true, and thus endeavored to shield those who were guilty. and were as follows:

To these Mr. Kelly made answer as fol-

In answer to the charges preferred by D. A. Hayes, et al. vs. J. M. Kelly, before the Executive Board of the Central Trades Council, the defendant pleads not at all, but says in answer to each specification:

That charge one is a deliberate, malicious and contemptible lie, and that all "missepresentations" complained of were not misrepresentations at all, but the truth as at that time written.

That charge two is the same, the allegations being deliberate, malicious and contemptible lies, which facts are known to those who brought the charges.

That charge third is the same, deliberate malicious and contemptible lies, and the men who utter them are deliberate, malicious and con-

I desire to state in connection with these charges that if they can be proved I am willing to make public acknowlegment of any error or violation of the truth I have uttered. But I class them as totally nutrue and inspired by people who are strangers to the truth. The Board will not have my presence at its meeting, but as it will make report to the meeting of the Trades Council Saturday evening, I expect to be there, my good health and the Lord permitting, to tell the accusers to their faces, as I have sione before that, they miserably and contemptibly lie.

J. M. KELLY, L. A. 6680, K. of L. EVIDENCE PER CHARGE. The evidence in support of the first charge produced before the Council on Saturday night included a clipping from Mr. Kelly's paper, in which he claimed that those who "were abusing" L. A. 300 were a lot of scalawags and scoundrels who were a dis-grace to the cause of labor, and a further claim, in the same issue, that the only people who would be injured by the impeople who would be injured by the people who would a lot of "idiotic scoundrels who were no more interested in the law than was a hitching post." Mr. Kelly refused to retract anything that appeared in his paper, and the delegates from L. A. 6111 claimed that as they occupy and we will dispose of them at they occupy and we will dispose of them at they occupy and we will dispose of them at they occupy and we will dispose of them at they occupy and we will dispose of them at the delegates from L. A. of the charge before the C. T. C. that the slanderous charges applied to them as well as to any others who might have been active in the matter. It was shown that in a later issue Mr. Kelly attacked the council as a body, alleging tha their usefulness was at an end, and that the C. T. C. would not amount to much until President Evans, Vice President McGaw, John Ehman, M. P. Carrick and a few more were left outside the sanctuary.

In support of the second charge, it was claimed that Mr. Kelly on the 20th of April, had said that the men who arrived at Jeannette were glishmen who had been out of work for several years, and that hearing of a large factory being started over here, had come to take their chance for work. Mr. Kelly strengthened this statement at a meeting of the Executive Board on the 1st of May, and the advertisement of the Chambers & Mcat which he voluntarily testified that he "proposed to say just how it came to pass these men came over." He stated that his paper had a circulation wherever glass was made on the face of the globe, and that Kee Glass Company in his paper for work-men had come to the notice of the English workers, and that they had written for jobs. THAT SECRET CIRCULAR. To disprove these statements the delegate from L. A. 6111 quoted from the secret cir-cular of James Campbell, issued to mem-bers of L. A. 300 on April 19, and in which bers of L. A. 300 on April 19, and in which Mr. Campbell stated that "the President of the Federation (W. H. Slicker) was in-formed that L. A. 300 was in need of 25 blowers and 25 gatherers." The President of the Federation notified L. A. 3504, Suth-erland, England, that this number of men was wanted by the Chambers & McKee Company at Jeannette, Pa., and the Secretary of 3504 wrote that "the men would come." It was held that the secret circular of the 19th day of April clearly contradicted Mr. Kelly's statement of May 1, and proved that the advertisement had nothing to do with bringing the men over. Further, it was shown that the claim that they had been victimized and black-listed men, who had been out of work for years was untrue, by an extract from the Potters' Gazette, of London, England, which showed that the men had been employed at the Hartley Glass Works, Satherland, and that only a portion of those employed at those works had been subject to occasional periods of idleness. In support of the third charge it was alleged that on the 15th of May Mr. Kelly had testified under oath that the advertise ment in the Commoner had induced men to come over, and that Secretary Cake had so informed him; that he had hesitated about inserting the advertisements because on two previous occasions L. A. 300 had con plained that all such advertisements tended to bring foreign workmen to this country; that to provide against this possibility he had omitted to insert the ad. in the European

THE DELEGATES' ARGUMENT.

The delegates from L. A. 300 drew atten sion to the fact on the first of May Mr. Kelly had claimed that it was the big circulation of his paper in Europe which had in duced the men to come over, while on May 15 he stated that he had sent no papers to ALE and porter are the correct drinks for Europe containing the ad. When asked to explain this, it is claimed that Mr. Kelly mid, "I Con't know whether it is my belief or not; they might have come on the ad, or they might not." The delegates from L. A. 6111 then charged that he had tried to make others believe what he was not prepared to believe himself, and that if he possessed any in formation which made him doubt whether it was the ad, brought men here or not, he re-served it for himself; and that he did not ell the whole truth. The delegates from 6111 claimed that Mr. Kelly had knowledge of James Campbell's secret circular of April the 19th, for the reason that Secretary Cake, on behalf of L. A. 300, offered to place at the disposal of the joint committees all official documents relating to the subject, and that, if this proposal was under in good faith, the circular would have been submitted. If they were willing to exhibit this document to the committee in an areas in section. committee in an open investigation where it could have been seen by enemics, them was must have had full knowledge of James Campbell's circular of the 19th of April, and that therefore his testimony on the 15th of May was given to mislead the Executive

A delegate who was seen later said that Mr. Kelly had not attempted to rebut the evidence brought against him, and had accepted the decision of the council on the vote, which was 24 for expulsion and 10 against. Mr. Kelly, when seen, admitted that he had been expelled, and added that he had not deemed it necessary to make any defense in face of the expressed determination of some members of the council to remove him from it at all hazard.

MACHINISTS HAVE A CONFAB

With Regard to Higher Wages, but are Unable to Agree. The meeting of machinists in the old hall, Fourth avenue, on Saturday evening, was expected. Several delegates who were met not attended with the results its promoters with expressed themselves as satisfied that expected. Very little information could be Mr. Kelly had been fairly dealt with and obtained regarding the proceedings, which were of the star chamber order, despite the fact that during the week some of the members were anxious to have the meeting duly noticed in the press. Said a gentleman who was present: "You ask me to say what was done. Well, nothing. The meeting was called to form some sort of an amalgamation between the three bodies: the National Association of Machinists, the Brotherhood of Machin-ists, and the Amalgamated Association of Stationary Engineers. The latter body was a new one on me, as I had known of only two before. An attempt was made to come to an understanding about demanding an increase of 10 per cent in wages, but though there was plenty of vapor there was no re-sult. Another meeting will be held to con-sider the matter."

What Local Physicians Say of Europe's Epidemic of Influenza.

Nasal and Throat Diseases Prevailing in This Locality.

THE WORK OF A WICKED MICROBE.

VERY SIMILAR TO THE EPIZOOTIC The epidemic of influenza which prevails n Europe attracts much attention from phyicians here, not only because of the peculiar symptoms of the disease in Europe, but because of its unusual prevalence here. Physicians say that the damp climate of this valley is conducive to nasal diseases, and that this year they are worse than ever. The influenza is properly an epidemic. In an article in the revised edition of the American Encyclopedia, Dr. Austin Flint speaks of an epidemic called in different countries influenza, and by the French writers "grippe," which is characterized by bronehial inflammation. Its occurrence frem time to time has been noted by medical writers for several centuries. It is an epidemic remarkable for its extensive and rapid diffusion, sometimes extending within a brief period over many different and widely separated countries. Dr. Flint says; "Like all epidemic diseases, this has doubtless a special cause, and this cause undoubtedly is in the atmosphere. The special cause, however, is independent of appreciable atmosphere changes. Of the nature. ble atmospheric changes. Of the nature, source and mode of diffusion of the cause we have no positive knowledge; but we are equally ignorant of the special causes of many, and indeed of most epidemic diseases. That these diseases depend on organic entities is a supposition which at the present time. time many regard with favor; but this re-researches. During some epidemics of in-fluenza, a vast number of persons are simul-taneously affected." The doctor's description fits accurately, it will be seen, the pres ent epidemic in Europe. CAUSED BY THE ATMOSPHERE. Dr. C. C. Wiley said vesterday: "The ordinary scute affection of the nasal passage is called coryga. It is common in Northern Europe, and is caused by certain atmospheric conditions. It is an acute inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nasal chamber but may sometimes be epidemic, owing to peculiar conditions of the atmosphere, which probably exist in Europe at this time.

That disease is not considered contagious,

"Niemeyer, a standard medical author, says that under the operation of unknown atmospheric influences, from time to time, epidemies have arisen in which very extensive activate has accounted with various." tensive estarrh has occurred, with unusual constitutional disturbances. Such an epiconstitutional disturbances. Such an epidemic of grippe or influenza appeared in 1732, and traveled throughout Europe, from east to west, attacking at least one-half of its population. The disease at that time proved to be a dangerous one, especially in cases of children and old persons, partly from the intensity of the fever and partly from the intensity of the lever and partly from the extension of the local affection into the air-cells of the lungs. Since that time there have been repeated epidemics of in-fluenza, particularly in the years 1800 and 1835. It is only properly called influenza when it is epidemic; otherwise it is simply when it is epidemic; otherwise it is simply coryga. Medical authorities admit that is very many cases the exciting causes of catarrh are unknown."

Dr. Joseph N. Dickson said: "I know nothing about the epidemic in Europe, except a little I have seen in the papers. I have no doubt that we have just as much influenza and other catarrhal affections here as they have in Europe, only we are no making as much fuss about it. The Em peror of Germany and some high priced opera singers were afflicted, and that made it sensational. We have more influenza here than in recent years. It has been preyalent for six or eight weeks. It generally arises from atmospheric conditions. Certain conditions and temperatures of the atmosphere are favorable to the catarrhal germ which is a sort of bacteria in the air. I produces the inflammatory trouble in the nasal passages." INFLUENZA PREVALENT HERE. Dr. C. P. Seip said that he had paid little attention to the publications from Europe and as he did not know the symptoms he could not speak intelligently of the affair Some of his patients had inquired of him about the thing. He said he supposed that it was something like the disease which afflicted horses in this country in 1873—the epizootic. "Influenza," said Dr. Seip, "is unusually prevalent here at present. It seems to attack the throat mostly, but is not dangerous. I do not know the cause of it. On that question medical science is somewhat in the dark yet."

Dr. Chevalier Q. Jackson was asked what he thought the European epidemic was. He replied: "It is influenza or catarrhal fever. Nobedy dies of that disease when it occurs here, yet during an epidemic of influenza it so lowers the vitality that other diseases are likely to be more fatal. That is always the case during such an epidemic One of the characteristics of that catarrha

There have been some epidemics of it, however, in this country."

'What causes this catarrhal fever?" "It is a specific germ. That is, it is a germ which causes that disease only, just as there is another germ which causes small-pox. It is a microbe,"
"Why does not that germ cause the epidemic every year in just the same way?"
"Because the conditions are not ripe for it. That is as much as we can say about it.

That fact is one of the things indicating most clearly that it is a microbe. If it were simply the result of chills or colds we would have it every year. It is somewhat similar to the influenza of horses, which is very Smoker's Heart.
